Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 12 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rather cloudy but mainly dry. Cold with strengthening winds.

Today:
A rather cloudy day with perhaps a few snow flurries in the west, the best of any brighter or sunnier spells across eastern and northern parts. Feeling bitterly cold in the strengthening southeasterly breeze. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tonight:
Some clear spells across the north and east leading to a touch of frost, otherwise a mostly cloudy with outbreaks of snow reaching western parts later in the night. Windy. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Saturday:
Cloudy with outbreaks of occasionally heavy snow spreading east, with a risk of freezing rain. The snow perhaps turn rain at lower levels later. Strong southeasterly winds with coastal gales. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Much milder through Sunday and into next week with occasional rain, especially Sunday morning, or showers, but also some brighter interludes. Winds easing on Sunday and turning more southwesterly.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.